DALLAS (February 5, 2023) -- While in North Texas to participate in the Dallas Open tennis tournament, American players J.J. Wolf (currently ranked 48th in the world) and Michael Mmoh (83rd) on Sunday morning took a field trip to check out AT&T Stadium – home of the Dallas Cowboys. The players set up a quick net on the Miller Lite House field on the west side of the stadium and played a little tennis, and appropriately played some catch with a football. Tennis players love their football, so a trip to see the home of the Cowboys was a welcomed escape prior to Dallas Open competition.

The Dallas Open, held February 5 – 12, has returned for its second year at SMU after a highly successful inaugural tournament in 2022. The event features more than 60 world-class ATP Tour professionals and will be televised worldwide to more than 100 countries. It is the first ATP Tour event in the United States among 10 on American soil, and the only indoor championship.
