WHAT

The City of Farmers Branch will host an official grand opening of Joya at Oran Good Park, a one-of-a-kind glow-in-the-dark park, on Saturday, January 20, 2024. Mayor Terry Lynne and Deputy City Manager Mike Mashburn will ceremoniously welcome children and families to begin playing on the 18,000-square foot playground.

The play space includes a main playground area and a fenced-in tot play area. The playground features a 27-foot futuristic sphere where children can climb inside, a zip line, a spin zone, glow seating, swings, and an obstacle course - all lit with colorful LED lighting. While fun in the daytime, Joya comes alive at night with interactive features that glow, allowing for play during the day and evening.

Translated as “Jewel” in Spanish, Joya is the crown jewel of playgrounds in Farmers Branch and the region. The name Joya was chosen specifically to pay homage to the Hispanic residents of Farmers Branch. The design and construction of the signature playground have been primarily funded with federal and state grant dollars.
