FRISCO, Texas, and THE WOODLANDS, Texas (March 13, 2025) – The KPMG Women's PGA Championship and The Chevron Championship announced the two women's major championships are partnering to create the Texas Major Passport ticket package, a unique opportunity for golf enthusiasts to purchase tickets to attend both The Chevron Championship and the KPMG Women's PGA Championship in 2025.

The Texas Major Passport celebrates an unprecedented three-month stretch of major championship golf in Texas, as the Lone Star State will host two major championships in the same year for the first time in history. Adding to the milestone, this year marks the debut of the KPMG Women's PGA Championship in Texas.

"We are thrilled to partner with The Chevron Championship to introduce the Texas Major Passport, offering spectators a unique opportunity to experience two of the most prestigious events in women's golf, all within the same year and state," said 2025 KPMG Women's PGA Championship Director Jason Mengel. "This collaboration provides ticket purchasers with the rare opportunity to witness the best women players in the world compete for a Major title twice over a three-month span."

Priced at $286, the Texas Major Passport provides access to all four days of competition at both major championships. This is the only way to guarantee spectator attendance at both events.

"The launch of the Texas Major Passport underscores this year's historic significance for women's golf," said Glenn Weckerlin, Executive Director of The Chevron Championship. "At The Chevron Championship, we look forward to welcoming some of the world's top players to The Woodlands, and we are proud to partner with the PGA of America to offer fans the opportunity to be part of this exceptional stretch of golf in Texas."

The Chevron Championship, the first of five annual women's golf majors, will be played April 24-27, 2025, at The Club at Carlton Woods in The Woodlands, Texas. Since 1983, The Chevron Championship has been the first major event of the LPGA Tour calendar, with a grand history of setting the stage for an incredible competitive season. Some of the best players in the world have recently captured the Dinah Shore Trophy, including defending champion Nelly Korda, Jin Young Ko, Lydia Ko, Stacy Lewis and Lexi Thompson.

The KPMG Women's PGA Championship, the second-oldest women's Major Championship, will be contested June 19-22, 2025, on Fields Ranch East at PGA Frisco. The Championship showcases the best female players in the world, including 2024 KPMG Women's PGA Champion Amy Yang, competing on a world-class course for their place in golf history.

Only three players in history have won The Chevron Championship and the KPMG Women's PGA Championship in the same year - Pat Bradley (1986), Annika Sörenstam

(2005) and Inbee Park (2013).
